

Discussions with families should be noted in the patient's medical record. The formal consent document, signed by a suitable family member, should include a list of all organs and tissues for which consent to remove, for transplantation or research, has been given.